UTAH PMHCA PROGRAM: CALL-UP

What we would like to learn:

- How are programs successfully “getting the word out” about their programs to drive utilization?
- What is the “normal” growth rate for programs (i.e., how many patients/providers are programs serving per month/year on average versus how long they have been active)?
- How do programs achieve financial sustainability absent federal or state funds?
- Are there any successful implementations in schools and/or emergency departments?

Top Goals of Program:

As part of the state of Missouri's Maternal Mortality Prevention Plan, we plan to implement a hub-and-spoke model Perinatal Psychiatry Access program with a focus on rural and medically underserved areas to improve care for pregnant and postpartum persons and to do the following:

What is the prevalence of providers screening their pregnant and postpartum patients for behavioral health, and how can we be effective in increasing universal screening practices among women's health care providers?

How much impact will stigma have on our efforts, especially in rural areas?

How will severe mental health care workforce shortages limit our ability to expand treatment efforts?

Texas MMHSUD Goals

TEXAS
Health and Human Services

Goal 1: Build the capacity of Texas' perinatal workforce to enable routine MMHSUD screening for pregnant and postpartum women, especially women living in underserved communities and women living in under-resourced rural areas

Goal 2: Increase access to real-time psychiatric consultation and substance use disorder screening, treatment, and recovery support resources for the perinatal workforce. Pregnant and postpartum women will be able to obtain in-person or telehealth care from providers in the Be Well Texas Recovery Network and the Be Well Texas Clinic.

Goal 3: Increase access to trauma-informed, culturally, and linguistically appropriate psychiatric or substance use disorder treatment and recovery support services for pregnant and postpartum women

Characteristics:

- Expand existing PeriPAN as newly funded MMHSUD
- Implement statewide
- Focus on women with SUD

Texas Learning Objectives

TEXAS
Health and Human Services

- MMHSUD efforts tend to start with MH. Texas wants to learn about innovative strategies and/or lessons learned that can help expand Texas PeriPAN to be more inclusive of SUD.
- Texas want to understand how states have streamlined the telementoring user experience to reduce confusion and frustration, especially when using multiple telementoring platforms.
- With an understanding that many women with MMHSUD delay engagement with perinatal providers, Texas wants to learn how to ensure that the training and telementoring provided is relevant to and meets the needs of multiple provider types that engage with pregnant and postpartum women.
- Texas wants to learn how to shift treatment of SUD from an acute care model to a chronic disease care model and integrate SUD under the umbrella of medical care.
